FLAGGED ORDER

Order Completed: 1/16/2007 2:32:00PM (Eastern)

Civil Records Results:

The civil case information is provided pursuant to the employer's request. ESR renders no opinion as to whether this case is job related or is a valid predictor of job performance. The preceding case(s) are taken from public records that contain a party to the lawsuit that matches the applicant's name. It is important to understand that unless otherwise noted, this is a NAME MATCH ONLY. In providing an employer with civil cases matching the applicant's name, ESR is providing a public records search and is not offering an opinion as to whether a civil case in fact is associated with an applicant. When screening courthouse records for civil files, there are often no identifiers such as social security number or date of birth to establish whether the name in the court's file is the same person as the applicant. In addition, the court records will usually contain the nature or type of case, but often does not have details. When there is a civil case, ESR recommends the following. First, based upon what is known about the applicant, a determination should be made whether the case is likely to involve the applicant. Secondly, a determination should be made as to whether the general nature of the case is likely to have any bearing on a job decision. If an employer is concerned about a case and wants more details, ESR can arrange on the employer's behalf to have a court researcher pull, review and copy the clerk's docket. This normally gives the history of the case as well as a copy of the civil complaint. This will usually indicate the nature of the lawsuit, and give more information about the parties. ESR can also review these matters with an employer. Your customer representative can advise you as to the cost of obtaining and copying the court files. However, if the absence of identifiers in the public records does not allow an employer to determine if the public record is associated with the applicant, ESR can arrange to assist an employer in retaining the services of an investigator in order to conduct interviews to obtain additional information.

Sexual Offender Search

Country USA Order: 8916627
State CA City Santa Rosa
County Sonoma

Result: Order Completed: 1/16/2007 4:25:00PM (Eastern)

Sexual offender registration information is subject to limitations beyond the control of ESR since each state varies in what information is assembled and released. Many states limit the reporting of sexual offender registration to more serious offenses and in some states, there can be limits based upon when record keeping began. In addition, not all sexual offenders register as required by law. For these reasons, a sexual offense database search may not accurately report all offenders and should be used in conjunction with other tools. In California, sexual offender information should only be utilized if the position involves access or contact with an identifiable group at risk.

Social Security Trace

Order: 8916533

Result:

Order Completed: 1/16/2007 2:06:00PM (Eastern)

The social security trace is an address information location index that is used exclusively to identify previous names and addresses that are associated with a social security number in various databases. The information is gathered by private organizations and comes from multiple sources, and therefore it is not possible to determine exactly which database provided the information. The result of a search may not be used for employment purposes directly, but may only be utilized to assist in determining jurisdictions to search for records, or to suggest additional research.

On occasion, there are no names or addresses associated with a SSN. This can occur when a person has never applied for credit, so there is no history in the credit bureau files, or the SSN does not belong to the applicant. In addition, there may be occasion where there are names or addresses incorrectly associated with a SSN. This can occur for a variety of reasons. If an applicant is concerned about any such discrepancy, they can contact all three major credit bureaus to review their own files. The Social Security Administration will verify the information an applicant gave, but only to an employer directly after a person is hired. An employer may call 800-772-1213 and must provide their Employer Identification Number (EIN).

This product is a locator index that may be used exclusively to identify potential previous names and addresses the applicant may have used and to obtain the applicant's date of birth and verify the applicant's Social Security Number. The results of a search shall not be used directly for the purpose of making employment decisions. However, the results may be used to broaden the scope of employment related background checks to include additional jurisdictions and names beyond those that the applicant disclosed and to narrow the background check by including the applicant's date of birth in those cases where this information is not obtained from the applicant. The results of these expanded background checks may be used for making employment decisions in accordance with the FCRA and applicable state and local statutes. Important: The Public Records and commercially available data sources used in this system may have errors. Data is sometimes entered poorly, processed incorrectly and is generally not free from defect. This system should not be relied upon as definitively accurate.

A Summary of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act

The federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) promotes the accuracy, fairness, and privacy of information in the files of consumer reporting agencies. There are many types of consumer reporting agencies, including credit bureaus and specialty agencies (such as agencies that sell information about check writing histories, medical records, and rental history records). Here is a summary of your major rights under the FCRA. For more information, including information about additional rights, go to www.ftc.gov/credit or write to: Consumer Response Center, Room 130-A, Federal Trade Commission, 600 Pennsylvania Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20580.

- You must be told if information in your file has been used against you. Anyone who uses a credit report or another type of consumer report to deny your application for credit, insurance, or employment - or to take another adverse action against you - must tell you, and must give you the name, address, and phone number of the agency that provided the information.
- You have the right to know what is in your file. You may request and obtain all the information about you in the files of a consumer reporting agency (your "file disclosure"). You will be required to provide proper identification, which may include your Social Security number. In many cases, the disclosure will be free. You are entitled to a free file disclosure if:
 - a person has taken adverse action against you because of information in your credit report;
 - you are the victim of identity theft and place a fraud alert in your file;
 - your file contains inaccurate information as a result of fraud;
 - you are on public assistance;
 - you are unemployed but expect to apply for employment within 60 days.

In addition, by September 2005 all consumers will be entitled to one free disclosure every 12 months upon request from each nationwide credit bureau and from nationwide specialty consumer reporting agencies. See www.ftc.gov/credit for additional information.

- You have the right to ask for a credit score. Credit scores are numerical summaries of your credit-worthiness based on information from credit bureaus. You may request a credit score from consumer reporting agencies that create scores or distribute scores used in residential real property loans, but you will have to pay for it. In some mortgage transactions, you will receive credit score information for free from the mortgage lender.
- You have the right to dispute incomplete or inaccurate information. If you identify information in your file that is incomplete or inaccurate, and report it to the consumer reporting agency, the agency must investigate unless your dispute is frivolous. See www.ftc.gov/credit for an explanation of dispute procedures.

- Consumer reporting agencies must correct or delete inaccurate, incomplete, or unverifiable information. Inaccurate, incomplete or unverifiable information must be removed or corrected, usually within 30 days. However, a consumer reporting agency may continue to report information it has verified as accurate.
- Consumer reporting agencies may not report outdated negative information. In most cases, a consumer reporting agency may not report negative information that is more than seven years old, or bankruptcies that are more than 10 years old.
- Access to your file is limited. A consumer reporting agency may provide information about you only to people with a valid need -- usually to consider an application with a creditor, insurer, employer, landlord, or other business. The FCRA specifies those with a valid need for access.
- You must give your consent for reports to be provided to employers. A consumer reporting agency may not give out information about you to your employer, or a potential employer, without your written consent given to the employer. Written consent generally is not required in the trucking industry. For more information, go to www.ftc.gov/credit.
- You may limit "prescreened" offers of credit and insurance you get based on information in your credit report. Unsolicited "prescreened" offers for credit and insurance must include a toll-free phone number you can call if you choose to remove your name and address from the lists these offers are based on. You may opt-out with the nationwide credit bureaus at 1-888-5-OPTOUT (1-888-567-8688).
- You may seek damages from violators. If a consumer reporting agency, or, in some cases, a user of consumer reports or a furnisher of information to a consumer reporting agency violates the FCRA, you may be able to sue in state or federal court.
- Identity theft victims and active duty military personnel have additional rights. For more information, visit www.ftc.gov/credit.

States may enforce the FCRA, and many states have their own consumer reporting laws. In some cases, you may have more rights under state law. For more information, contact your state or local consumer protection agency or your state Attorney General. Federal enforcers are:
